Kryolan's Airbrush makeup is the product of many years of experience and experimentation. Far superior to watered-down body paint, these formulas have all the qualities a demanding artist wants from an airbrush ready makeup.

Airbrush Makeup FAQs

HISTORY: When digital cameras appeared in the mid-nineties makeup artists turned to the airbrush to take off the hard edge that pixelated images brought to skin texture. Liquid face and body paints such as AquaColor (see Kryolan AquaColor Liquid Makeup) were used with good success but always needed to be reduced -- a time consuming and sometimes frustrating task. The few companies who made airbrush ready makeups charged too much for so-so products. Kryolan, who pioneered airbrush technique and literally wrote the book on the subject, was the perfect company to develop this line. The formula was fine-tuned during 2004 and introduced to a few dealers throughout the world. We are very pleased to add it to our extensive line of liquid makeups.

TECHNICAL NOTES: Air Stream Make-up gives you the three qualities you need when you spray liquid makeup; Viscosity, which allows the makeup to flow through the airbrush without restraint. Stability, which significantly reduces slump, so that you don't have to stir the makeup in the cup as often. Fine Particle Size, so that it will spray in finer brushes with less clogging.

If you have come from the world of face-painting to airbrush ready makeup you will be a little disappointed. First, you can't brush or sponge it on, and it costs a lot more than normal sprayables. As with all liquid face and body paints it is very easy to mix colors. Being airbrush ready also means you don't need to worry about your polymer ratios, because it's already built-in. You also don't need to worry about diluting the chemical protection by introducing water. If you do need to dilute it, please use distilled water or one of many dilution agents that are available.

Air Stream does not contain alcohol or silicone. Product is made in Germany.

Sorry, we don't sell airbrush makeup to the general consumer.

Airbrush Makeup and Accessories

Kryolan's Air Brush Makeup

A new technique has recently been added to conventional means of makeup application: airbrushing.

Traditionally, the makeup sponge and brush sufficed for applications of makeup. Now, the airbrush has indeed become a highly appealing application for the specialized makeup artist. Contact free application of makeup with the almost imperceptible medium of air - along with the significant benefits that this method brings - have helped lead to a rapidly growing interest in this technique.

To successfully apply airbrush makeup, it is of course necessary to use specially designed makeup preparations. Just the right liquid foundation, for example, is absolutely necessary - micro-fine in consistency; designed and optimized for the airbrush. An appropriate airbrush itself, in addition to an effective mini-compressor, is naturally just as essential.

The makeup designer, with these products and this equipment, can skillfully use the new technique of airbrushing to achieve exceptionally uniform application of makeup to face and body. On this basis, it is possible to produce makeup transitions with such gentle and softly-drawn appearances with perfect visual results, even for shots with high-definition camera technology.

The chemists at KRYOLAN have developed a preparation just for these applications: AIR STREAM Makeup Colors. This new creation for the professional makeup artist was conceived especially for applications in still photography, for video takes, and, last but not least, for use with high-definition TV.
